FRESH APPEAL TO FIND TEN YEAR OLD GIRL

A missing ten year old girl, Emanuella Martinovic from Darlaston, West Midlands, has been revealed as the third child to feature in the national missing children's campaign led by the Police National Missing Persons Bureau, children's charity PACT and facilities management company, EMCOR Group (UK).

West Midlands Police is appealing to the public for any information about Emanuella who has been missing since October. Police revealed that prior to going missing, Emanuella became ill and was taken to London by a family member to see a doctor. She has not been seen since.

Emanuella's photograph will be included in the third missing children's poster to be displayed on EMCOR's fleet of vans across the country as part of the Taking KidSafety to the Street™ programme. It is hoped that someone will recognise Emanuella and come forward with information leading to her safe recovery.

It is believed that Emanuella, who has brown hair and eyes, could either be with a relative or with members of the Bosnian Romany community in this country, or even abroad.

Detective Sergeant Pete Cossar, who is leading the investigation of behalf of West Midlands Police, said: "As Emanuella is very young we are very concerned about her health and well being. We urge anyone to come forward with information that they might have - however insignificant it might appear."

“We are delighted with the Bureau’s, EMCOR and PACT’s support to help find Emanuella and hopefully this new poster may jog some people’s memories.”

In addition to helping recover missing children like Emanuella, the initiative also hopes to increase public support of the Missing Kids website (run by the Police National Missing Persons Bureau) in order to leverage much needed resource to help police authorities understand and reduce the number of children who go missing.

Members of the public are urged to look out for the posters on EMCOR vans and visit the Missing Kids website www.missingkids.co.uk calling the police on the free-phone number 0808 100 8777 with any information they may have on Emanuella or any other child featured on the website.

Missing Kids car stickers are available via EMCOR free of charge, please call 0845 600 2300 or email ukinfo@emcoruk.com.

MissingKids.co.uk

The UK Missing Kids website is a unique, state-of-the art tool designed to help the police recover missing and abducted children. It is a partnership between the police, charities, and the private sector.

The Missing Kids website was originally created in the USA by the National Center for Missing and Exploited Children (NCMEC). It was introduced to England, Wales and Northern Ireland in June 2000, and to Scotland in June 2004. The site is managed by the Police National Missing Persons Bureau (PNMPB), and by a number of police forces.

The UK Missing Kids Website is the only site of this kind which is approved by the Home Office, ACPO (Association of Chief Police Officers) and ACPO(S) (Association of Chief Police Officers Scotland). Only the police can enter information on the UK site.

The Missing Kids Website has been introduced to 16 countries and more are joining every year. The latest country to join was the Republic of Ireland.

PACT

PACT is an international, non-profit organisation, registered in the USA and the UK. It was founded in 2000 by Lady Meyer, wife of the then British Ambassador to the United States. Its patrons are Cherie Blair, wife of the British Prime Minister, and Laura Bush, First Lady of the United States.

PACT's initial mission was to fight parental child abduction across frontiers by raising awareness of a growing, but little-known, problem and by advocating solutions.

The Association of Chief Police Officers (ACPO)

ACPO is an independent, professionally led strategic body. In the public interest and, in equal and active partnership with Government and the Association of Police Authorities, ACPO leads and coordinates the direction and development of the police service in England, Wales and Northern Ireland. In times of national need ACPO, on behalf of all chief officers, coordinates the strategic policing response.

The Association supports the philosophy of strong local policing, and believes that must be maintained within the tripartite framework of policing which brings together the local Chief Constable, the local Police Authority and the Home Secretary.

But the nature of modern crime, with an increasingly international dimension, and the ever present need to use public resources to best effect, places a voluntary duty on forces to work together, employing common policies, strategies and methods wherever possible.
